COMMERCIAL

The commercial architectural work undertaken by Us typically covers the retail, office, multi-residential, mixed use development and manufacturing sectors.

It is our belief that, in the commercial world, an investment in good architecture and design translates directly into increased profitability for our clients.

A well-designed retail space will attract customers to it and help build a unified brand identity. Well considered office and manufacturing places will deliver efficient work practices, and provide inviting and productive work environments.

In mixed use and multi-residential developments, the bar is raised with the provision of a thoughtfully composed piece of architecture, resulting in higher capital returns on investment and/or higher leasing returns.

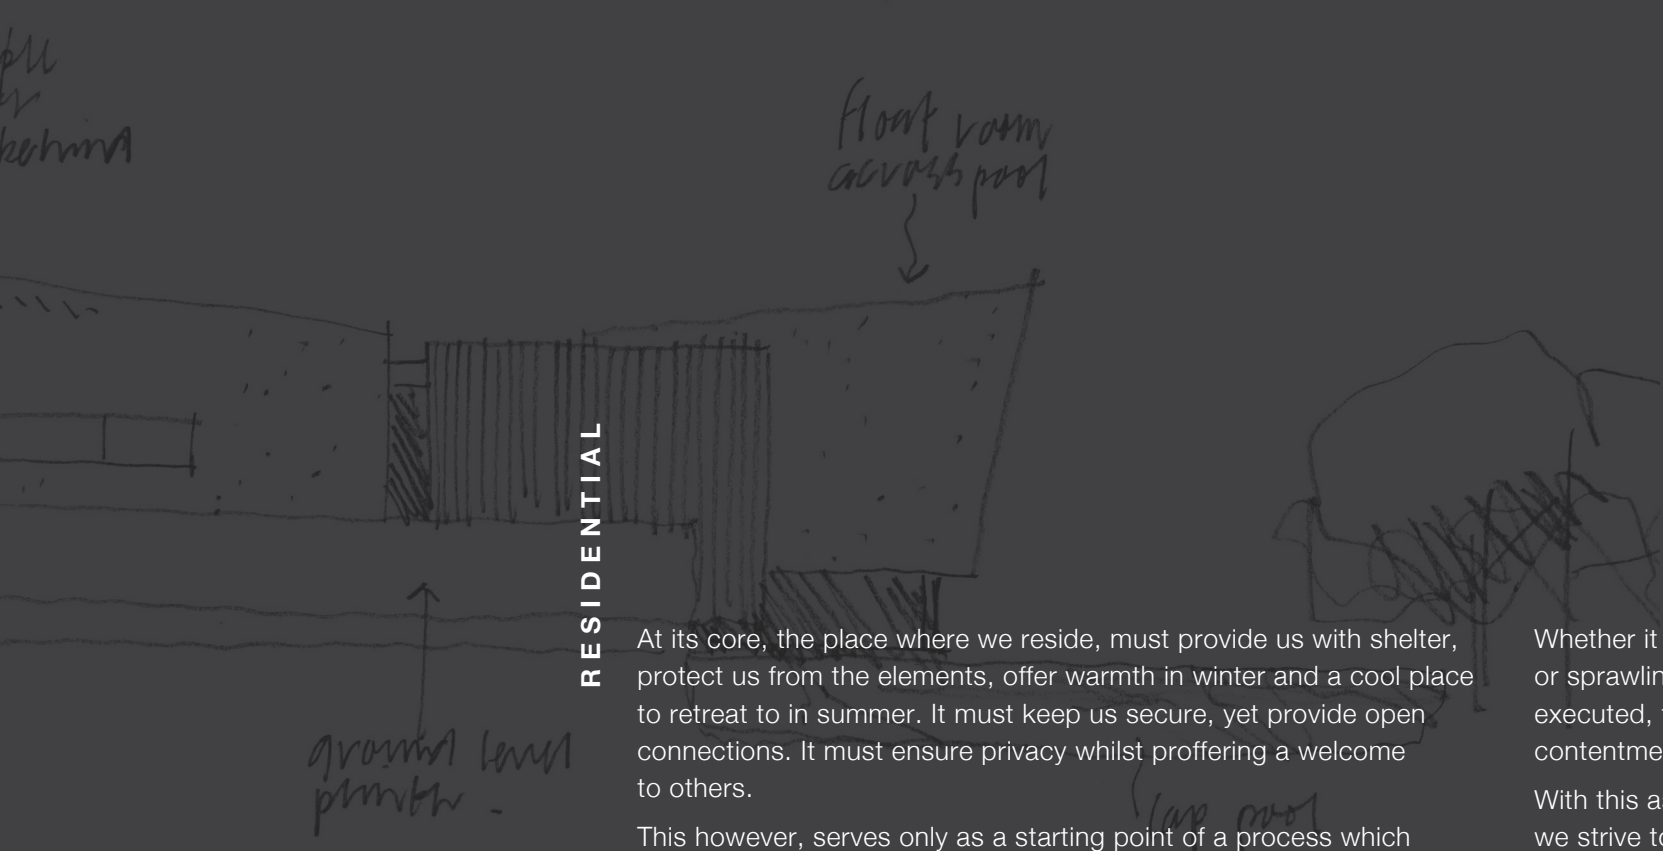

Our commitment to our commercial clients is for the delivery of best possible design outcomes exceeding expectations, with adherence to programme and budgetary constraints; ultimately providing the vehicle for best case profitability scenarios.

RESIDENTIAL

At its core, the place where we reside, must provide us with shelter, protect us from the elements, offer warmth in winter and a cool place to retreat to in summer. It must keep us secure, yet provide open connections. It must ensure privacy whilst proffering a welcome to others.

This however, serves only as a starting point of a process which ultimately must deliver far more to qualify as worthy residential architecture.

To be successful, the design must in some way capture and reflect the spirit of its users, their lifestyle, their values and interests. It must facilitate how they choose to live, and importantly provide for them an intrinsic sense of connection.

Whether it serves as an inner city sanctuary, a beachside retreat or sprawling country estate, when well considered, planned and executed, this place for living will offer its user a sense of enduring contentment.

With this as our mantra, in each and every new commission, we strive to provide a personalised brand of architecture tailored specifically to our clients' individual needs.

Drawing on collective experience and design talent, we have grown to be recognised as one of the country's leading exponents of bespoke residential architecture.

Our diverse residential folio spans over two decades, it speaks to the changing values and aspirations of our client's over this time, the purpose to which the dwellings have been put, their geographical location and response to local climatic conditions.

INTERIORS

Be it residential or commercial, as part of our holistic brand offering, our architecture works are complemented by in-house interior design services.

It is essential that the design intent established through the execution of the architectural expression, is carried through to the interior themes of the building.

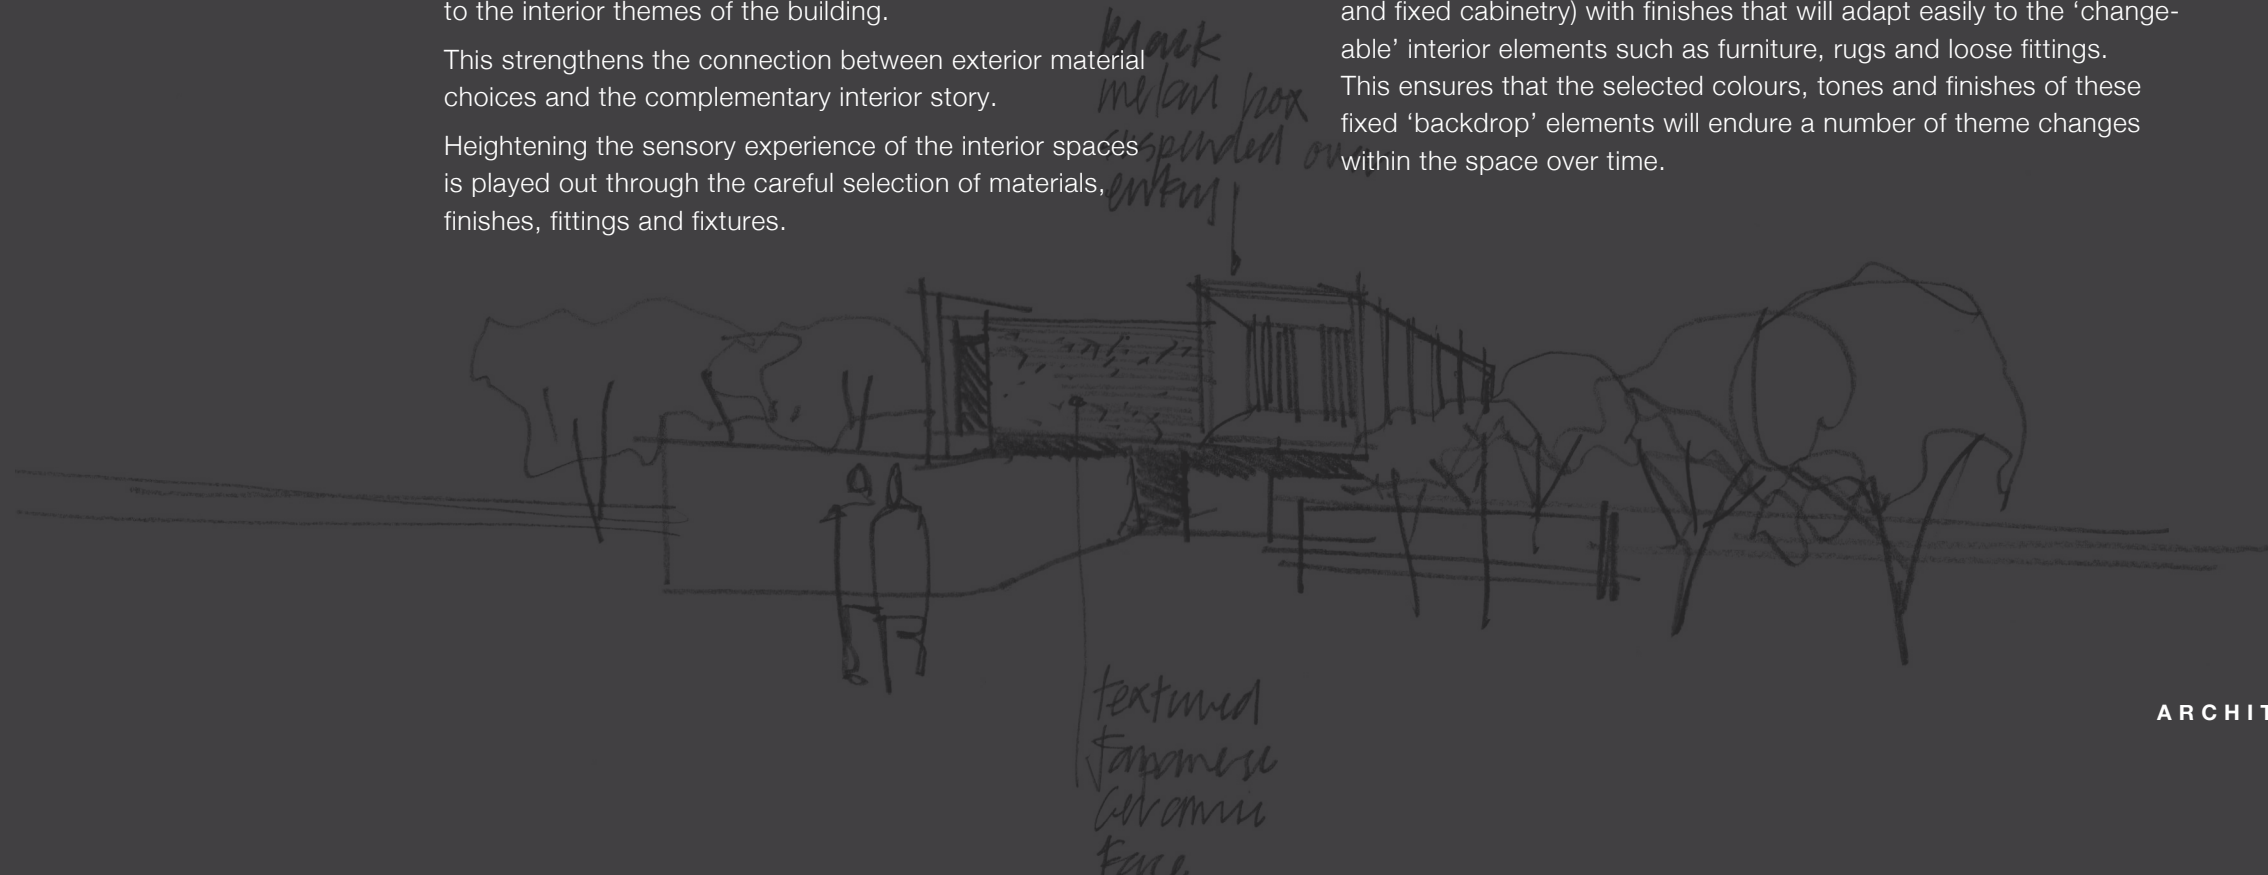

This strengthens the connection between exterior material choices and the complementary interior story.

Heightening the sensory experience of the interior spaces is played out through the careful selection of materials, finishes, fittings and fixtures.

As with the exterior treatments, the interior palettes most favoured by Us are best described as raw, honest and simple. We favour materials expressed in their natural state, timbers, concrete, natural stone, metals and natural cement coloured renders.

We treat all of the interior 'backdrop' elements (walls, floors, ceilings and fixed cabinetry) with finishes that will adapt easily to the 'changeable' interior elements such as furniture, rugs and loose fittings.

This ensures that the selected colours, tones and finishes of these fixed 'backdrop' elements will endure a number of theme changes within the space over time.
